description and definition of the "unit" set forth in the declaration. The unit boundaries, as described in the declaration, are defined in such a monarer so that all components of the building which are (or are potentially) utilized either by other units or the common elements are excluded from the unit. For your reference, the area of the unit, determined in accordance with those defined unit boundaries, is set forth in Section 3.2 of the Declaration. Note that the unique way of defining the boundaries actually makes the unit appear to be smaller than it actually would be if standard architectural measuring techniques were used. Measurements of rooms set forth on any floor pion are generally taken at the greatest points of each given room (as if the room were a perfect rectangle), without regard for any cutoust. Accordingly, the area of the actual room will typically be smaller than the product obtained by multiplying the stated length times with All dimensions are approximate and many with actual construction and all floor priors and development plans are subject to thought times with All dimensions are approximate and many with actual construction and all floor priors and development plans are subject to charge the subject of the properties of the
